

ABSTRACT

5 A system for networking a blood component collection facility is disclosed. The blood component collection facility has a plurality of independently operable blood component collection instruments. A facility operator administers one or more blood component collection procedures involving a donor. The system includes a system server and a communication conduit.

(123080 1)